Edinburgh, Monday, November 11, 1728.

From the Evening Post, Nov. 2.

Copenhagen, Oct. 30.

TH E King still extends his Royal Bounty to his distressed Subjects, who were ruined by the late dreadful Fire, by supplying them with Provisions. The Queen also is not unmindful of them, having sent large Sums to those who stand in need of Relief. Moreover, his Majesty intending to give Timber gratis to such as cannot purchase it toward rebuilding their Houses, has authorized the Governor of Norway to take all Ships in the Harbours of that Kingdom, and send them hither loaded with that Commodity. His Majesty has also ordered Lists to be taken of the Families whose Houses were burnt down, and convenient Shelter provided for them, in pursuance of which an Account of the Houses left standing has been taken, into which as many of the distressed shall be put in as they can well hold. Three Hundred Soldiers of the Garrison work every Day in clearing the Streets, under the Inspection of Officers, who to take Care that if any Thing of Value is found under the Rubbish, it may be restored to the Owners.

The Abbot Gosset, Chaplain to the Ambassador of France, who during the Absence of his Excellency, lodges in his House, has received into it 50 poor Families, and the 3 Nights and 3 Days that the Fire continued, took a world of pains in procuring Assistance, not only to French Roman Catholics who live here, but also to Protestant Refugees, by which he gained much Love and Praise.

London, Nov. 2. We hear that the Parliament will meet to do Business the 11th of January.

From the London Gazette, Nov. 2.

where they took the Diversion of hunting, and were afterwards entertained at Dinner by the Duke. This being the Birth Day of her Catholick Majesty, who entered into the 37th Year of her Age, the Court went out of Mourning, and there was a numerous Concourse of Foreign Ministers and Persons of Distinction, at the old Palace to compliment her Majesty on this Occasion.

His Most Christian Majesty having taken Physick two Days sooner than was intended, it is said his Departure from this Place is fixed to the 20th instead of the 22d Instant, there remaining nothing for his entire Recovery but another Purge or two, and a little Time for gathering Strength.

The Street Roberies that are so frequent of late make Gentlemen extremely apprehensive, of which the following is a Specimen.

One Night this Week, two Gentlemen coming by Exeter Exchange, were jostled from the Wall by a Person who endeavoured to pick a Quarrel with them; one of the Gentlemen in his own Defence knock'd him down, and the other secured him when the first went for a Light, and called the Neighbours, to find out whether he could be known by his Face, but upon Enquiry, the Person was found to be his Majesty's Loyal Tallow Chandler, who had been drinking the King's Health pretty largely.

Year, his Swedish Majesty having altered his Resolution about it.

Here was published lately an Order of the King, for a considerable Augmentation of the Troops of this Electorate.

For the Conveniency of the Publick, and on account of the Congress, Lanthorns have been put up in every Street in this City, in the like manner as at Paris; for defraying of the Charge whereof, a moderate Tax has been imposed upon Houses. We are informed that the Emperor has assured Cardinal de Fleury, That he will use his good Offices with the King of Spain, for inducing him to approve the Plan proposed for securing the Peace of Europe.

Moscow, Oct. 4. The Princess de Menzicoff petitioned lately the Emperor for Leave to go to her Spouse; but his Majesty did not think proper to grant her Request: However, he favoured her on another Account, for he augmented to 100 Crowns a-week the Pension he had granted to her before. General Jagoufski, who has been to view several fortified Towns of this Empire, returned a few Days ago from that Journey.

Wye's Letter, verbatim, London, Nov. 5.

Since our last arrived a Holland and a French Mail.

THE Advices from Vienna by the Holland Mail relate, That an Express arrived there on the 27th past from Count Sinzendorf, to inform the Em-

Em-

Emperor that the Plenipotentiary Ministers are very pressing to have his final Resolution upon the last Plan for a Truce; concerning which the Letters from Madrid tell us, That Count Coningseck the Emperor's Ambassador at that Court had proposed, in a great Conference with the British, Dutch, and French Ministers, several Articles of Alleviation of the Difficulties by Way of Addition to the above Plan; but that nothing could be resolved upon till the Arrival of the Duke de Bourbonville from Paris, which however was hourly expected, and 'tis assured that Cardinal de Fleury promised the said Duke, that every Thing concerning the said Negotiations of Peace, shall remain in statu quo, till he has communicated to his Eminency the Sentiments of the King of Spain upon the said new Project of Peace. Great Indulgences and Forbearances are shewn; 'tis hoped they will answer to Expectation. Mean while we are told, that the Speedwell and Isabella, which lately arrived in the River, came to an Anchor within the Streights, the Wind being westerly, on the East Side of the Neck of Land between Gibraltar and Spain, soon after which the Spaniards fired several Shot at them from a Battery on the adjacent Shore, which obliged them to cut their Cables and stand off. One Shot entered the Isabella in her Bow, and had the Weather been bad she must have been sunk thereby, whereupon the two Masters sent on Shore to beg Leave to take up their Anchors and Cables, which was promised; but before they had completed the same, the Spaniards to their great Surprise fired at their Boats, and it was with the utmost Hazard they got away with their Cables; and soon after they got to Gibraltar, where they made Complaint of their Ill Treatment to the Governor.

And from Gravesend we learn, that one of the Rogues concerned in corrupting the Post Boys, to permit them to take Letters out of the Mails on the Kent Road, and the only one which remained to be taken, is seized there and committed to Maidstone Goal.

Last Night Mr. Crouch of the Bank, apprehended one Luke Horsefall, for erasing the Figures in in the Bank Note mentioned in the Publick Papers of this Day, and being carried before Justice Cook, he owned the Fact, and said he had bought a Life Guard Man's Place with the Money. He was committed to Newgate.

By the French Mail we are informed, That the Superiors of the 3 Houses of the Jesuites have been to compliment the Cardinal de Noailles on his Acceptation of the Bull Unigenitus. No Mention is made of the proposed Truce.

We are told by other Hands, that his Excellency Horatio Walpole, who entertained several Persons of Quality on his Majesty's Birthday, will have Leave to return home for about a Month. Meantime 'tis assured, that pursuant to the Orders of his Catholick Majesty, carried by the Solebay Man of War, the Prince Frederick with her rich Cargo, valued at a Million sterl. also 2 Sloops belonging to the S. S. Company, have been delivered to their Agents at La Vera Cruz.

N. B. The Beauty and Conveniency of the Situation, and other Properties of the Mansionhouse, &c. cannot be sufficiently prized without seeing the same,

By Mr. ANDREW ROSSE, Humanity-Professor in the University of Glasgow:

I the above-design'd, being obliged to stay at Edinburgh, by Necessity insuperable to any honest Man, am to give daily LECTURES at some proper Place near the Parliament-house, such as in a Summer-session lately, Gentlemen of the Faculty of Advocates, and others of Character and Literature, by their Presence and otherwise honoured as a liberal Amusement proper for them; and were pleased to take further Notice of, in the End of that Session, by Approbation in Writ; thereby also inviting me to continue such Lectures whenever I could be at Edinburgh in Session-time, and promising suitable Encouragement. And I having found, on occasion of Reading Horace to them, two Dyets after the Session was over and the sign'd Invitation given me, how much Lectures on that Author were more to their good Taste, than those I had given on the Roman Historian Livy, am therefore to give such daily Lectures NOW, chiefly on Horace, only sometimes on Virgil, and on either, always with written Notes before me, to which I shall still keep close, whether I read, or perhaps only speak my so written Thoughts. But, for the Sake of young Students of the LAW, or of other Faculties, who may be proper Auditors, yet not have so much Practice that way as to follow by the Ear a Latin Discourse with Ease, I will beg Liberty always to go through each Lecture, or the chief Heads, also in English, at the same Dyet; in hopes that this may the better make the taking those my Colleges, some Help to attaining a Faculty of following Discourses delivered in Latin, and understanding them readily. As I am sensible, how much it is the Duty of every Professor, particularly of Humanity, not to encourage in so bad a Choice, those who are not inclin'd to come to Colleges, by offering to teach them Latin, or, nearer to an Academick-Professor's Work, Latin Authors, in a private House; I shall not fall under that Blame by my intended Teaching young Lads past Grammar-School, at my House in Ingliston's Land, above the Head of Black-fryar-wynd, in the Manner to be Advertised in this Paper; no more than in continuing at my said House on the High Street, such Lessons to Collegians or others past the Years or Attainments of mere Boys, as these my Lessons at 5 every Night, are already begun in the Foot of the College-wynd.

AND. ROSSE.
